Chapter 1 by Brianna Skye Rainer

-Night Ritual-

Around, all around, the dark memories gather.
My dread grows as doom's scythe falls against my heart.
It crushes me, and darkly my essence drips
to the cold, uncaring tombstones.
In numbness I fall limply while the Reaper takes my hand.
Now alone, my love falls upon darkened eyes.

This is your love

-Alone in Darkness-

the night falls without a sound, soulless are we.

how could you cause such hurt?
shadows surround us, crying, we are fallen.

-Imprisoned-

Slender beams of moonlight enter this darkened chamber as I kneel, always lost, always alone,
frozen here, waiting.

Tortured forms wrought in panes of glass loom as dust dances in the air, forming an image in my mind, sparing not my shamed soul.

Tears on a child's face.

I raise my head, now crying out for this impassive darkness.

-To be as she-

It is a night of ethereal pain, a song of ethereal pain, wolves vent their cry. The beautiful one awakes.

Mist shrouds her stalking form, an impatient fear.

the black cloak covers
black wings white shoulder cape full moon the part shown darkness streaming from it pale flesh beneath

her.

Now a night of new life,
I awaken.

-Stolen emotion-

what have you taken away?
a haze of darkness as emotions disappear.
once we experienced innocence, wide-eyed and glad-hearted, but your love vanished.
a painful vision of pain - emotions follow pain, follow darkness, love ground to dust.
in a storm of sorrow,
i still love you.

Chapter 2 by Hannah Harvey

The heart is beating
I can hear you breathing you breath not the fog it used to be I can remeber the day you took me away
from the life where Im supposed to be but you love me and thats all that matters because thats my life

I just can't put

I need to get back to where I belong you

wake up and grab me you push me down
another attempt failed in the moonlight
just a little tilt and I could have escaped but As always
I was too afraid.
